There's no more mystique attached to any people, race, or culture than there is to Roma — or gypsies as they are more commonly known. The musical documentary Gypsy Caravan, shot by the legendary Albert Maysles (Gimme Shelter, Grey Gardens) and directed by Jasmine Dellal, juxtaposes spine-straightening performances from such top international Gypsy musicians as "Queen of the Gypsies" Esma Redzepova and brass band Fanfare Ciocarlia with glimpses into their more sobering personal lives back in Spain, Macedonia, India, and Romania. By the end of what's essentially the best kind of roadtrip movie, it emerges how completely their music provides the home that countries do for most other tribes. (LR)
